

Job Announcement: Butter Beans After-School Cooking Classes, Assistant Teacher

Headquartered in New York, Butter Beans Inc. provides healthy meals and food education for bodies and minds through our tasty, nutritious Food Service program for school meals, Food & Garden Summer Camp, and After-School Cooking Classes aimed at improving the health and welfare of children today. Butter Beans Cooking Classes teach students about seasonality, international cuisines, nutrition, and mindfulness through creative recipes.

We seek an enthusiastic and reliable Assistant Teacher for our After-School Cooking Class program who is passionate about healthy eating and cooking, nutrition, and teaching children how to create healthy meals. This position will report directly to the Director of Food Education.

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Support the Lead Teacher in the execution of our after-school cooking class program.
- Ensure all materials and ingredients are ready for class each week, and assist in keeping the cooking class space clean and organized before, during and after class.
- Ensure the health and safety of all the students in the program: good hygiene, food safety, and responsible use of knives.
- Foster a collaborative learning environment for students to explore new cuisines, food literacy, and a deeper understanding of healthy food systems.
- Assist in classroom management by keeping students engaged and focused.
- Help inspire and motivate students to try new foods & make healthy food choices by setting the example and promoting dynamic class participation.

Qualifications:

- Demonstrated experience in teaching children, ages 4-12
- Strong classroom management skills and understanding of student safety
- Dependable team player and problem solver
- Excellent communication skills, creative and open to sharing ideas.
- Resourceful, dynamic, patient and flexible
- Strong work ethic and a good sense of humor
- Knowledgeable about culinary skills, nutrition, and food education.
- Passionate about creating healthy communities through nutritious and seasonal meals
